

Software/Services Thanksgiving

I've never been a big fan of holidays, nor do I think Thanksgiving should be a federal holiday, given its origins. However, in this time of long-overdue criticism in the technology press, I would like to appropriate "The Spirit of Thanksgiving" and focus on the technology companies who's business ethics align toward the benefit of us users, and who's products are well-priced (or free!) and really great, for lack of a better term.

For reference, here's my own list so far:

1. Bandcamp
2. OBS!
3. Typora
4. GIMP!
5. NeoCities

So! I would love it if you'd reflect on software/services you use (or have used in the past) in this form. Thank you!

Software/Services Thanksgiving

I've never been a big fan of holidays, nor do I think Thanksgiving should be a federal holiday, given its origins. However, in this time of long-overdue criticism in the technology press, I would like to appropriate "The Spirit of Thanksgiving" and focus on the technology companies who's business ethics align toward the benefit of us users, and who's products are well-priced (or free!) and really great, for lack of a better term.

Software/Services Thanksgiving

I've never been a big fan of holidays, nor do I think Thanksgiving should be a federal holiday, given its origins. However, in this time of long-overdue criticism in the technology press, I would like to appropriate "The Spirit of Thanksgiving" and focus on the technology companies who's business ethics align toward the benefit of us users, and who's products are well-priced (or free!) and really great, for lack of a better term.

For reference, here's my own list so far:

1. Bandcamp
2. OBS!
3. Typora
4. GIMP!
5. NeoCities

So! I would love it if you'd reflect on software/services you use (or have used in the past) in this form. Thank you!

If hardware counts, I reaaaally love my Kobo e-reader, and above all the folks that make Koreader, since it's such a great piece of software - it even has a very convenient RSS reader! (which I use a lot.) I am also pretty grateful for the folks that make open-source alternatives to cellphone apps, such as the fellows that make NewPipe, a great youtube/soundcloud app! And if I may be cheeky, I must admit that torrents have been a great help many many times. So that's that!
